

What should we do as retail investors?

Retail investors should let their winners become real big winners and sell the loss making companies. Sell wherever their hypothesis is no longer true.

When we are correct, we make profits, and at the time of mistakes, we sell and redirect the proceeds to more profitable investments. We must know that even the most sophisticated investors are often wrong. Admit it and move your money to a better place.

We must make sure that our correct assumptions earn us a lot, around 10 -20x. If you are wrong, admit it, shift your investments and move on.

If you are right, 5 out of 10 you will become a great investor.