

This is typically how different types of channels move. We will prefer bullish breakouts in case of ascending channels, and bearish breakouts in the case of descending channels. We are indifferent about the direction of a breakout in case of symmetric channels.