

WHAT ASSETS WE WILL BE USING?

The next step when creating strategies is to decide upon the kind of assets and the universe of assets we will be using. This means we have to determine if we will primarily trade in large caps and indices or along with mid and small caps and if we will be trading with currencies and commodities. We also have to decide upon trading either using actual assets or futures and options market. The reason we fixate on assets is that each category behaves differently and one strategy will not work for all situations.
