

By doing it manually, we also get additional insights about the scenarios in which the strategy works and otherwise, the improvements needed and the kind of markets it is best suited for. We will back-test all strategies this way.