OPTIONS TRADING

Options the riskiest method of trading where capital is created and lost in a very short span of time. Options trading is a very complicated school in itself which is beyond the scope of this course. As beginners, we will stay away from trading purely in options as multiple factors are at play and these require financial sophistication and technical expertise. For those who understand it well, can go ahead with option trading strategies as well. Options are mainly used for risk management and we will also limit the use of options to risk management.
