

Dinosaurs were the dominant land animals on Earth for an unimaginably vast span of time: 160 million years. They were not entirely wiped out, and their descendants the birds survive to this day.

