

Invertebrates are animals that have neither a backbone nor a bony internal skeleton. This is an incredibly varied group; it includes insects, spiders, mollusks, sponges, jellyfish, and worms.

